To housing starts in Newville. One thing missing from the economic recovery has been a surge in new housing construction, but that's starting to change at least in the Newville area. More than 40 homes have gone up on lots near Interstate 90/39 and Lake Koshkonong, selling for more than $200,000. As the inventory of available existing homes continues to tighten, especially near the Madison area, buyers are heading further south in search of affordable housing. Over the long run, the pick-up in home construction should lead to a larger inventory of available existing homes and restore balance to a hot housing market. Remember when this region was suffering from a housing glut? Seems like yesterday.
